

Q What we want to get is your state of mind.

MR. STUDER: I mean what was your state of mind?

Q You see this is the kind of a thing that we want to get at from you as to just what your first feeling was?

MR. STUDER: Incensed at the fact that the minister was found in this place under these circumstances with this woman; now were you incensed about that?

A Why, I certainly was incensed but I wasn't sure whether the murders had been committed there or not. I didn't know whether they had been murdered some other place and taken there or whether they had been murdered there or what had happened. Everything was in a blur in my mind.

BY MR. HEIFFER:

Q All you had had regarding the facts of the murder was what you had read in the Home News that you got at Monmouth Junction?

A That's all, yes.

Q Do you remember what Mrs. Hall did after you had this conversation with her?

A Why, there were quite a number of people around the house there and she seemed to be talking to different people and to have perfect control of herself.

BY MR. STUDER:

Q Was she crying?
